DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

3. Claims 1-5 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Weber (US 2002/0129442).

Regarding claim 1: Weber discloses a turning tool (20), a fitting (18) held detachably on a water outlet armature (16) by a screw connection, wherein the turning tool can be placed in a rotationally fixed manner on an outer periphery of the plumbing fitting, and has profiling (threading) which has a mating profiling (threading) on the outlet side of the plumbing fitting. Weber does not disclose that element (20) is to be used as a turning tool, however it would be obvious that it could be threaded onto element (18) and then be turned to thread element (18) into element (16).

Regarding claim 2: The turning tool (20) and fitting (18) have contours (threads) that can be connected to each other in a rotationally fixed manner.

Regarding claim 3: The fitting has an outer outline that is adapted to be inserted into an inner opening of the turning tool.

Regarding claim 4: The turning tool has a contouring or profiling (threads) which can be placed in a rotationally fixed manner on a mating profiling or contouring on the fitting.

Regarding claim 5: The turning tool is constructed with a collar shape and formed as a nozzle.

Regarding claim 9: The turning tool and fitting are each constructed as a component of a jet regulator.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 6, 7, and 8 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

5. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art fails to disclose or render obvious the combination including a fitting and a turning tool having an identical function and/or shape, crown shape contouring, or the contouring on both the fitting and the turning tool being on the outlet face.
